

Music for a Summer's Day

3rd July 2011

Adults and children alike were captivated by the superb music that filled the Village Hall on Sunday. The children were free to come and go to the play area outside, but nearly all chose to stay – and they listened silently (almost!) to the powerful performances by mezzo soprano Michelle Harris, soprano Julie Gray and baritone Adrian Gray. They loved the humorous acting that went along with some of the pieces – and the dads quite enjoyed it too!

The audience were soothed by oboe recitals from Dan Lloyd and enjoyed Dan Harding's seamless piano accompaniment that provided a backdrop to it all.

It was the perfect introduction to live classical music for the first-timers in the audience, and a real summer's afternoon treat for the more experienced listeners.

What a privilege to experience such top quality professional musical talent in our little village. The children, I am sure, will never forget it!
